

OSTEOPATHY CLINIC

Osteopathy is an effective form of manual medicine that aims to restore the body's musculoskeletal system to a state of balance. Osteopathy uses a unique system of diagnosis and treatment that emphasises the structural integrity of the body to treat many disorders that result in pain and dysfunction.

Osteopathic treatments are generally very gentle, and use a wide range of techniques that can include gentle joint mobilisation, spinal manipulation, trigger point therapy, myo-fascial release, stretching and soft tissue massage. The objective of treatment is to return you to full and pain free mobility and function and may include specific exercise prescription, postural, nutritional and lifestyle advice to maximise your treatment and recovery from:

- Back pain (incl disc injury)
- Neck & shoulder pain
- Headache & migraine
- Sports injuries
- Sciatica
- Tendonitis & bursitis
- Whiplash
- Postural complaints
- Jaw pain & TMJ

Dr Matthew Fourro and Dr Egbert Weber are both experienced Osteopaths with backgrounds in Naturopathy.
